TORRESPONDENCE: DEALER.

The Canadians are naturally jesious of ners, one solitary schooner constitutes the ed in imports and exports to over twelve millions of dollars. In 1854 the only vessel on Portage Lake was the Indian bark cance, while in 1860 there came and went 48 propellers, 67 steamers and 15 schooners. In 1854 there was no white population at Pertage Lake, and now the census shows over 6,000. The experts of the place for 1860 were over a million of dollars .--The copper produce of the whole lake, which in 1854 was a mere trifle, had risen In 1860 to 6,400 tons, of an estimated value of $3,200,000. The Toronto Globe sets forth the want of enterprise on the part of the Canadian Government in encouraging this trade and establishing lines of communication, and now that it has taken hold of the matter in earnest, will be likely to traordinary mied and equally extraordiurge it until something is done to bring to Canada a part of the great wealth of the Death of Dy, Lyman Beccury. Rav. Dr. Lyman Beecher died at his residence, in Brooklyn, New York, on Saturday evening, aged 87 years. His funeral will be attended to-day, (Wednesday, Jan- to build a Pacific Bailroad. uary 15th,) at his son's Henry Ward'schurch, Dr. Bacon, of New Haven, delivering the funeral discourse. His body will se buried in the New Haven cemetery, according to the request of the deceased. The death of so noted a theologian and the father of "the Beechers" is worthy of more than a passing note. Lyman Beecher was born in New Haven, October 12th, 1775-not September, as stated in the "Brief Memoirs of the Class of 1797," of Kale College. His father, David Beecher, was a blacksmith, whose strong, posttive character, whose many ecceptricities, and whose great, dark eyes (said to have been the most beautiful in Connecticut) gave him a celebrity in all the country round. The house still stands in which he lived-a memorial of the Colonial days; and, about six years ago, the old man novisit to the homestead, drinking such other's health from the ancient well which its roof covers, dug at the first settlement of New Haven.
